Mini Regional Event – Great Savings

Are you planning to attend a Conference in San Antonio the end of July? If so, consider making the most of your travel expenditures by participating in NAPT's Mini Regional Event! This is an excellent opportunity to participate in our Bench Scale and Analytical Scale ILC/PTs. Both ILC/PTs will be offered between July 25th and July 31st.

As everyone is feeling the crunch of these economic times, NAPT felt that creative financial planning to provide for your proficiency testing proved to be very beneficial. By participating in this event during your conference visit you will eliminate the need to participate at a later date which will save additional travel expenditures, accommodation expenses and loss of income by taking a technician out of the field. Recommend this excellent opportunity to your boss. You've got nothing to lose, and everything to gain! Everyone is looking for ways to reduce expenses while maintaining accreditation status!!

This regional ILC will be set up to allow for both organization and individual competence.

We do need to hear from you right away, so we can make this happen. The conference is only 2 months away and many arrangements and accommodations will need to be made.

Online Data Evaluation

Ever been curious about how to evaluate proficiency testing data? NAPT offers an online seminar to demonstrate the robust and indepth analysis that is performed on data for each ICL/PTs we offer.

After participating in the online review you will know how the reference values and associated uncertainties are assigned, you will know what importance the pivot lab plays in the stability of the ILC/PT kits, these and many more questions are addressed in this very informative review.

If you would like to review NAPT's statistical analysis process, contact us at napt@proficiency.org for more information.
